

Share the Magic

"Be kind to all peoples . . . be loving sons and daughters to the old . . .
Think ye of love and good fellowship as the delights of heaven . . ." – 'Abdu'l-Bahá

Imagine a world with no computers or Internet. How about no cell phones, iPods, or TV? When they were kids, your grandparents—and maybe your parents—didn't have a lot of the amazing technology we use today. They might love to learn about cool gadgets, or they may feel overwhelmed. New inventions pop up faster than you can click a mouse.

If you're a high-tech wizard, you can help older family members and friends explore the world of technology. They'll enjoy a chance to share their skills, too. Maybe your grandpa can help you write a song, and you can show him how to post it online. Or your mom can show you how to take good pictures, and you could create a family website together.

Have fun finding creative ways to use computers and other technology to tune in to your family and friends!

Kids are sharing their knowledge at this community center. Find nine devices that help people learn together.

Caring Camera

Helpful Headphones

Laptop of Leadership

Mouse of Moderation

Patient Printer

Reliable Remote Control

Smartphone of Service

Thoughtful Tablet

Webcam of Wonder

